Club more than fun and games

BY MONICA K. SMITH
NEW ERA COMMUNITY EDITOR

The parking lot was full Saturday night outside of the Hopkinsville Fraternal Order of the Eagles' building. A steady stream of people filled the back room of the building where comedians The Fryman and Steve Poggi prepared for a night of laughter.

"This was something fun to put on here in Hopkinsville," said FOE president Doug Woods, who organized the event. "It's a new idea that hasn't been done in a while."

Proceeds from FOE events fund charities such as Sanctuary House, the Aaron McNeil Center and various youth sports organizations. FOE also contributes to national charities that fund cancer and heart disease research.

"A lot of people don't understand what the Eagles do in the community," said Woods while collecting tickets for the comedy show. "There is a misconception that we are just a private club or a bar."

One of the largest charitable events the Eagles organize is the annual Lexi Sabatino Poker Run, offered each summer to benefit a sick child in the community. Woods attended the event a decade ago

Police in Ky. assess handling of post-game mayhem

BY COLIN FLY
FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A day after raucous celebrations led to more than two dozen arrests, police said Sunday that they are ready to control crowds near the University of Kentucky's campus when the Wildcats play Kansas for the national championship.

Lexington city police spokeswoman Sherelle Roberts told The Associated Press on Sunday that several hundred officers will be out in force on Monday to help keep order.

"Our fans are real crazy about us. If we win tomorrow, it'll be even more crazy."

Doron Lamb
UK guard

"We're prepared," she said. "We expect a majority of people to obey the law."

Police plan a few adjustments from Saturday, when thousands of fans spilled onto streets after Kentucky defeated cross-state rival Louisville in New Orleans. Fans torched couches and overturned a car before setting it ablaze.

Roberts said police did a good job of getting rowdy fans under control. Officers arrested 27 people on minor charges such as disorderly conduct and alcohol intoxication.

Police who had braced for the possibility of post-game violence resorted to pepper spray, though large amounts weren't needed before officers ultimately began dispersing the throngs.

Lexington Fire Department Battalion Chief Ed Davis said there weren't any arson arrests. Police were still searching for the person who set the car on fire.

He said firefighters were dispatched to 50 nuisance blazes near the Lexington campus on Saturday night, which included the car, couches and campfires that were lit in the middle of the street.

He said most students who were out celebrating abided by the law and were helpful when "a few bad apples" caused problems — such as throwing beer bottles at police as they tried to break up the crowd.

Roberts said there were no serious injuries nor any major property damage and nothing occurred that police hadn't anticipated.

The devil is a powerful spiritual being

DEAR REV. GRAHAM: Does the devil really exist? If so, what does he look like? I've always assumed the devil is just a myth, but I'm open to changing my mind. — J.K.K.

DEAR J.K.K.: Yes, the devil certainly does exist; he isn't just an idea people dreamed up to explain the existence of evil. Someone has said that one of Satan's tricks is to convince us he doesn't exist — but he does.

Repeatedly, Jesus referred to the devil as a real being. At the beginning of Jesus' ministry, the devil tried to divert Him from God's path; at the end of His ministry, the devil prompted Judas to betray Jesus. Satan is a powerful spiritual being whose primary goal is to turn us away from God.

Although he is a spiritual being, Satan apparently can assume human form on occasion. At times, the Bible says, he may appear as a very attractive and winsome personality. At other times, however, his evil, vicious nature is obvious.

Never forget two facts about the devil. First, he is your enemy.

Second, never forget that Satan is a defeated foe!

HEARING LOSS and DEMENTIA LINKED

If hearing loss goes untreated, a condition called "auditory deprivation" occurs, this has been confirmed by scientific studies. Seniors with hearing loss are significantly more likely to develop dementia over time than those who retain their hearing, a study by Johns Hopkins and National Institute on Aging researchers suggests. The findings, the researchers say, could lead to new ways to combat dementia, a condition that affects millions of people worldwide. Although the reason for the link between the two conditions is unknown, the investigators suggest that a common pathology may underlie both or that the strain of decoding sounds over the years may overwhelm the brains of people with hearing loss, leaving them more vulnerable to dementia. They also speculate that hearing loss could lead to dementia by making individuals more socially isolated, a known risk factor for dementia and other cognitive disorders. But there's good news! Whatever the cause, the scientists report, their finding may offer a starting point for interventions even as simple as hearing aids - that could delay or prevent dementia by improving patients' hearing.

Lawmakers bust myth with open budget negotiations

BY ROGER ALFORD
ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Lawmakers busted a myth late last week when they reached agreement on a $19 billion state budget without retreating out of public view.

In the past, budget negotiators have worked out details of Kentucky's budget behind closed doors with shades down, hallways roped off and state troopers standing guard.

Some lawmakers believed that was necessary to reach accord. Others likely preferred to not let constituents see their bareknuckle style of negotiations on behalf of pork barrel projects. In an unusual twist, negotiators this year allowed cameras from the public television station KET to run throughout the proceedings, capturing the largely cordial discussions between Democratic House Speaker Greg Stumbo and Republican Senate President David Williams and their top lieutenants. Reporters weren't allowed in the room but were able to monitor the talks via the KET feed.

David Thompson, head of the Kentucky Press Association, said he was encouraged by the show of openness.

The Pennyroyal Arts Council received more than $1,600 in donations at the Jellybean Jog 5K it sponsored downtown on Saturday morning.

The council could not provide an estimate of the total proceeds on Sunday, but 110 donations of $15 or more puts the total at $1,650 or more, minus the cost of T-shirts.

A Fort Campbell soldier, John Pace, 45, won the race by finishing in about 21 minutes. At least two other runners in the top five also belong to the military.

Some 130 runners, walkers and bikers registered, said Jill Atkins, who helped organize the event.

The proceeds will go into the arts council's general fund. As a result of budget cuts by the state and federal governments, grant money the council used to rely on is no longer available, said Jill Atkins, who helped organize the race.

The council typically raises money with a concert or auction in the early summer.

"This is a lot different than anything we've ever tried to do as a fundraiser event," Atkins said.

She hopes it has raised awareness of the council's financial need.

A designer at G & S Embroidery made a T-shirt logo with some suggestions from Atkins. At registration tables on Saturday morning, volunteers gave away shirts for donations of $15 or more. They'd given out all 110 shirts by 8:45 a.m., 15 minutes before the race began, Atkins said.

Participants started at Founder's Square and went south on Main Street, then across Latham Avenue and Mooreland Drive, to Morningside Drive, then north on Virginia Street until they reached Ninth Street again. It was the same route used for the Turkey Trot every Thanksgiving.

In addition to its work with local schools, the arts council coordinates five performances every year at the Alhambra Theatre, Atkins said. The next event is an April 20 concert hosted by Ron Creager, a local pianist.

CRIME

Tubing, water heater stolen from Barrow Street house

A burglary occurred between Wednesday night and Thursday morning at 730 Barrow St. with $300 worth of property stolen, according to a Hopkinsville Police Department report. The property included copper tubing, inner coiling and a water heater.

Tommy Craft, 49, the house's owner, reported the incident Thursday. The suspects entered the house by prying open the back door; the report states. Police believe the suspects used an unknown object, possibly a cutting tool, to cut away the copper tubing from the water heater.

Aluminum mats, semi-truck batteries taken from home

Judy Cross, 65, reported that between March 23 and Friday, $650 worth of items were stolen from her property at 758 W. 15th St., according to an HPD report.

Cross reported that the suspects entered her property by cutting a hole in her fence. Two aluminum mats and three semi-truck batteries were stolen from her property, the report stated. Cross also reported that several abandoned mobile homes around her property were damaged when the subjects entered and removed copper and aluminum from them.

No suspects have been identified. They face charges of theft by unlawful taking, criminal mischief and criminal trespassing.

Gun discharged into hotel

A gun was fired into Hampton Inn, 210 Richard Mills Drive, by a passing driver Saturday, according to an HPD report. The shot left damage to property inside one of the hotel's rooms.

A male suspect is identified in the report, which states he allegedly fired a shot from a .45 caliber pistol as he was driving by the hotel. The bullet hit the exterior wall of hotel room 211, occupied by Patricia Jones, 58, Danville, and Martha Jones, 61, St. Louis.

The shot damaged a mirror inside the room. The suspect faces charges of criminal mischief and wanton endangerment.

Soldiers' daughters treated to prom dresses, hair and makeup tips

BY DAVID SNOW
FOR THE NEW ERA

FORT CAMPBELL — Life as a teenager in a military family is tough. You make friends that you see for just a few years before you move off and make new ones. You're under the watchful eye of other soldiers and military personnel. And, on a soldier's salary, who can really afford a prom dress?

Fashion designer Sherri Hill and the Fort Campbell USO Center made that last hurdle quite a bit easier on Sunday when the fashion designer donated several prom dresses for soldiers' daughters. A few suits were also available for sons of military personnel to bring home for the prom.

The day was much more than a dress selection. It began with a fashion show put on by state winners with the Miss USA program and the Liberty Belles troupe at the Wilson Theatre on post. Guest speaker Connie Clark Harrison, the 1976 Miss Kentucky USA and the director of the Miss Kentucky USA program, gave a motivational speech following the fashion show.

FROM NEW ERA STAFF REPORTS

A fire damaged a Madisonville Road home Sunday night. Paul Smith, assent chief of Crofton Volunteer Fire Department, believes the fire was caused by electricity in the house.

No one was in the home at the time of the fire and the homeowner's name was not available at the scene.

The fire damaged the back room of the wood house at 14207 North Madisonville Road. The rest of the home suffered smoke and water damage according to Smith.

Crofton Fire Department was assisted by Mannington Fire Department and the Christian County Sheriff's Office.

The young ladies then marched over to the USO Center to browse through dresses coordinated by size.

Also on hand were employees of Eden Bay Spa and Salon of Clarksville, Tenn., which gave makeovers and tips on hair styling and makeup application.

Members of the Miss USA program, including current Miss Kentucky USA Amanda Merta, Miss Tennessee USA Jessica Hibler, Miss Texas USA Brittany Booker and Miss North Dakota USA Jaci Stofferahn helped the young ladies pick out prom dresses and took part in the fashion show.

It was the first time for such an event to take place for soldiers' daughters anywhere, with Fort Campbell being the first military installation nationwide to take part in this endeavor. With the apparent success of this inaugural event, it looks like it might be continued not only here, but at other posts across the country.

"It's just so important," said Ray Kennedy, the vice president of USO Metropolitan New York, which organized the event. "This month is about military children, so we're really, really happy to be able to be here."

"The USO Metropolitan New York are the ones that made all this happen," said Kari Burgess Brown, the director of the Fort Campbell USO Center.

"Ray (Kennedy) knows Sherri Hill, and has worked with her for years and years. He's the one who got the donations, and when they were looking around at installations to see where to bring them, he decided to come here."

DAVID SNOW | FOR THE NEW ERA
Nebraska Teen USA Sarah Summers models this dress onstage.

Each girl was given a gift bag that included makeup from Maybelline as well as a garment bag for carrying their dresses. They also got accessories to wear to the prom.

"It's a special event for these girls who have served and sacrificed," Brown said. "We haven't been able to reach them very well since they were probably 5 years old."

Several of the girls came with their mothers, fathers or grandparents to help them decide on their prom dress.

"It's a blessing!" said Pam Halchishick, the mother of Ela Halchihick. "We were one of the last people in line, and we just knew that whatever dress came to her would be the one that was supposed to be. We are very blessed to have this opportunity — and it was fun!"

"All of them were pretty," said teen Grecia White. "(I was looking for) a long dress like this one — this one was it!"

Brown estimated the value of most of the dresses at more than $500 each, but to help the program continue, the girls are asked to donate them at the back door of the YMCA Ballroom when they are through with them.

"They are a high value, and if we sell them, we won't be able to do this again," Brown said. "We want them to pass it forward."

BUDGET: Lawmakers bust myth with open negotiations

"What goes on is not government business; it's the public's business," Thompson said. "The public in the stockholder in government, and the public, just like a stockholder in any corporation, has a right to know what's going on."

In passing an open meetings law decades ago, Kentucky lawmakers excluded themselves from its provisions. And House and Senate leaders have traditionally used that exclusion to its fullest, shutting themselves away to decide how to divvy up the public's money. Typically, only a relative handful of selected lawmakers have been part of those negotiations. All others are excluded, and some, like Democratic Rep. Tom Riner of Louisville, consider that unreasonable.

Riner, an advocate for open government who refuses to take part even in closed caucus meetings, said he was heartened that the budget negotiations had some semblance of openness this year.

"It should be the new norm, showing that we understand that the public's business is be done in the light," he said. "Special interests can get involved, and sunlight helps to filter that out."

What the public learned from watching the marathon negotiations on the KET feeds was that more than 30,000 government workers will go without pay raises and some 200,000 retirees won't get cost-of-living increases in their monthly pension checks.

Negotiators reached an accord early Thursday on the budget proposal that also calls for sharp cuts to most government agencies and programs.

Three days of intense talks ended early Thursday when legislative leaders exited a conference room with a tentative deal on the two-year, $19 billion spending plan.

The agreement called for 8.4 percent spending cuts, which will be especially difficult for agencies that have already trimmed their budgets by more than 30 percent over the past four years.

One issue of contention involved how revenue from the state's tax on mined coal would be appropriated, including $6 million that House Democrats want to use to provide scholarships to Appalachian college students.

The cameras rolled as Stumbo and Williams reached a compromise that extended the scholarships to college students in all of Kentucky's coal-producing counties, including those in western Kentucky.

Rep. Jim Wayne, another open government advocate, said he would have liked to have seen an even more open process. He said he's hopeful the KET cameras will be just the start of what will become a completely open process.

KENTUCKY: Police assess handling of post-game mayhem

"I think we did pretty good, all things considered," she said. Kentucky players and coach John Calipari expressed shock and disappointment over their fans' actions, but acknowledged that passion for the team can run high. "Our fans are real crazy about us. If we win tomorrow, it'll be even more crazy," said guard Doron Lamb. Guard Darius Miller said it looked "pretty crazy" from the videos he received on his cell phone. "I don't know how to explain it," he said. "Hopefully everyone makes it out OK." Forward Terrence

Jones described the images as "crazy." "I don't want to go to that person's house. They don't have nowhere for me to sit," he said, in a tongue-and-cheek reference to the burned couches. "That's crazy." Calipari said he was disappointed to hear about the chaos in Lexington, and he had team spokesman DeWayne Peevey use Twitter to encourage fans to calm down. He said it might be that some fans just had too much to drink. "The state of Kentucky is so connected to this program. It's the commonwealth's team. They go overboard sometimes," he said. Roberts said 150 officers were deployed on the streets at one point to quell what she called "a very dangerous situation" with the fires and mayhem that dragged on for hours. The scene was similar in 1998 when Kentucky won the national championship game. That year, 300 officers in full riot gear lined downtown streets as a gathering of nearly 15,000 fans celebrated. Police made 10 arrests, and 25 people were treated for minor injuries. Two years earlier, chaos ensued following Kentucky's win over Syracuse in the championship game — officers were pelted with beer bottles, and a television news crew's van was overturned.

entrée and dessert because T.C. was that good. "If she decided to sell something, she was going to sell it," recalled Myra Kaye Hancock, who first worked with T.C. in the bar. The people who loved her most also recall that T.C. could be opinionated. It was her drive. She wanted to please customers.

"We got into a fight once at Bart's, and I fired her," said Sandra Hostilo, who was the general manager. But the group was already bonding, and soon they convinced Sandra to re-hire T.C. "It wasn't right without her. We had to have her back."

Later, when Myra Kaye and others opened J's on Main, several employees at Bart's went across the street to the new restaurant. T.C. was with them.

"When we opened J's, we pretty much knew every customer's name or we knew what they wanted to eat and what they drank," said Sylvia Hall.

For the next several years, they shared their lives and their work. Babies were born. Birthdays celebrated. Parents were mourned.

They had a bond. Hard work. Good food. Deep friendships.

J's on Main closed in 2002, and some of the employees moved away. But they kept in touch with each other. Often, T.C. was the glue. She called to get people together. She decided which one would deliver flowers when a parent died or where they would eat for a reunion.

T.C. waited tables for a time at Shintomi's, a Japanese restaurant on Skyline Drive. She cleaned houses and helped her mother sell Tupperware. She sold herbal supplements.

Last month, when Myra Kaye opened a new restaurant on Sixth Street called The Place, some of the old crew joined her. Hard work. Good food.

T.C. was among them. "She wanted everything to be perfect because she thought it had to be the best they are ever going to eat," Myra Kaye said.

Last Tuesday evening, T.C. was making ranch salad dressing and helping prepare for the next lunch crowd. They had been slammed that day. T.C. became ill, and someone drove her home.

Later that evening on

"I'm OK, but I'm not really sure what I'm supposed to do."

Myra Kaye Hancock friend

the phone, she told Myra Kaye, "I'm at home ... and I'm OK." Early the next morning, she became ill again and told her husband, Benji, she needed a drink of water. She collapsed and died before sunrise Wednesday.

Myra Kaye called her cell around 7 a.m. and left a message. She wanted T.C. to see a doctor. "Don't stress," she told her friend.

A relative called around 9 a.m. to tell Myra Kaye that T.C. had died. They thought it was a heart attack. A sign went up on the restaurant door. They would be closed for a couple of days.

Four friends, Myra Kaye Hancock, 50, Jennifer McKinney, 41, Celia Blausen, 52, and Sylvia Hall, 44, walked into Lamb Funeral Home on Thursday morning. All four had worked with T.C. in Hopkinsville restaurants. They wanted to fix T.C.'s hair and make sure her makeup looked OK for the afternoon visitation. She had always been meticulous about her hair.

A hair dryer broke and one of them drove down the road to the Dollar Store and bought another one so they could finish her hair. They left and got ready to say goodbye.

Friday evening, after the funeral, they threw a party at the restaurant to celebrate T.C.'s life. The building was packed. They toasted their friend.

"I love that group of girls," Sandra said Sunday afternoon. "I've never experienced anything else like it. We are very lucky. We have a deep bond."

They never thought they'd lose someone so young. T.C. was 46.

"I'm OK, but I'm not really sure what I'm supposed to do," Myra Kaye said. "I'm going to have to learn how to work differently."

Champion dog overcomes neglect

MADISONVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A veterinarian gave 15-month-old St. Bernard Jewel little chance of survival less than three years ago.

Rolland and Michele Kaemerer had placed the dog, one of 14 in a litter, into a show home in Tennessee at 9 weeks old.

When the Sacramento couple picked up Jewel 15 months later, she was starving, afraid and worn down. A veterinarian recommended euthanizing the dog.

“Jewel barely had any fur on her body,” Michele Kaemerer said. “She was shaking and scared to death.”

What the Kaemerers didn’t know at the time, however, was they had a champ on their hands. Not just any champ, but one receiving worldwide attention.

In less than three years, Jewel went from knocking on death’s door to prancing in Madison Square Garden at Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show in New York, where she was chosen Best in Breed among all St. Bernards at last month’s televised show.

The canine, which holds titles as The American Kennel Club Canadian Champion, an International Best in Show, 63 Best of Breed awards, and others in 2011, is now retired from the show circuit, the Kaemerers said.

Michele and Rolland weren’t ready to give up on Jewel during the low point of her life. They said it took about a year to get her from 74 pounds back to her normal weight of around 140.

“The vet told us she was dehydrated and malnourished,” Michele said. “He told us to consider having her put to sleep.”

The woman called and wanted to bring her back, Michele said. The lady didn’t like the shape of the dog’s head.

Upon retrieving Jewel, they noticed the dog had a chain around its neck, looked very frail and afraid, and had lost most of its fur.

Jewel wouldn’t even answer to her original name or even look at the Kaemerers. She just shook, terrified in the back corner of a crate, Michele said.

Rolland said he would never have imagined a person would have neglected a pet like that.

The couple said the dog has undergone a 360-degree transformation in the last two and a half years. Now, Jewel’s thick coat marked of black, brown and white, is as smooth as silk.

Rolland said Jewel is at the top in her breed, ranked first among female St. Bernards and fourth overall. He said when going out around town to the doctor or store, people always inquire about how the dog is doing instead of how he is doing, he said with a laugh.

Jewel, whose handler is Jennifer Bittner of Newnan, Ga., has such a sweet and loving personality that makes her stand out from the rest, the Kaemerers said, and the effortless expression she shows on her face says, “pick me.”

Michelle said the judges at dog shows are amazed when she’s in the show ring. Jewel’s pretty and she knows it, she added.

“She’s all about belly rubs, hugs and kisses,” Michele said. “She will live out the rest of her life at home with the family.”

The Kaemerers moved from Louisville to Greenville 17 years ago, then decided to build a home on 5 acres in Sacramento to allow more room for the dogs. The couple have a 12-year-old daughter, Danielle, who also enjoys interacting with the family’s nine St. Bernards.

The couple is members of the Owensboro River City Kennel Club and St. Bernards of America. “Saints require a lot of space,” Rolland said. “They have a new kennel building where they can be inside or out.”

The family recently acquired three additional St. Bernards from an elderly man in Michigan who could no longer care for the dogs.

When not taking care of St. Bernards, Rolland, who is retired from the Green River Correctional Complex, judges dog shows around the country.

They hope to have other champion dogs in the future. As for Jewel, the Kaemerers hope she will have a litter of puppies, and maybe the pick of the litter will be just like her.

“For us,” said the Kaemerers, “There’s no other dog we’d rather have than a Saint.”

St. Bernards, bred by Monks starting in the 18th century, were used in rescue missions during snow storms in the Alps between Italy and Switzerland.

Michele said the dogs have a lifespan of seven to 10 years.

“They cross the rainbow bridge too soon, but once you’ve had a St. Bernard, you’re hooked for life,” she said.

“She’s all about belly rubs, hugs and kisses. She will live out the rest of her life at home with the family.”

Boyfriend’s racist words disturbing

DEAR AMY: I have been dating a great guy for more than a year. We are both divorced adults in our 40s (with children), and we have been having a wonderful time together. He is very different: He is a gun-owning conservative, and I am a peace-loving, composting liberal. The political differences have never really bothered me. I have learned a lot from him, and I thought the more he learned the more he would appreciate my values and opinions too.

A political conversation we were having escalated; and he referred to several different racial groups in horrible, derogatory terms.

I was absolutely appalled, shocked and disgusted.

He apologized and said he would never talk that way in front of me again. However, I’ve learned that he and some friends told a horrible, racist joke to my stepfather.

Honestly, it has changed the way I feel about him. It isn’t just that he said those words; it’s that he thinks them.

On the one hand, I feel I am betraying my values by continuing to associate with him. On the other, I feel I should try to demonstrate tolerance, understanding and diversity.

My family is racially diverse, and he has met them and gets along well with them.

What do you think? Is expressing racist thoughts a deal breaker? — Worried

DEAR WORRIED: Here’s what I like about your guy: He is willing to behave differently. This is a fairly rare and wonderful trait. You cannot police his thoughts, but if he is acknowledging his behavior and has pledged to change it, then that is a start.

If these expressions have genuinely changed the way you feel about him, then you don’t have to ask me about deal breakers.

But if you can demonstrate your own values (namely tolerance and the ability to imagine a person evolving and changing his views), then you might have the pleasure of seeing someone change in a radical and genuine way.

Now that you have declared where the line is drawn, you both know what the deal is.

DEAR AMY: My sister lives with her boyfriend in a relationship that started out rocky (including two instances of physical abuse) but seems to have stabilized.

Both are divorced, and both are adamant about not marrying because they see no need for a “piece of paper” (their words).

She moved into his house. She cleans, shops and cooks, and she pays him “rent” (his word) and utilities.

Two years ago, she liquidated her 401(k) to help him purchase a lake cabin, paid for furnishings, and continues to pay for renovations.

She is not on the title to either house. Neither of them has a will.

The boyfriend reaps the advantages of property ownership; my sister, of course, does not.

Normally, I stay far away from other people’s finances. However, she is pressuring me to visit them at this lake house.

I have been noncommittal, but I do not want to spend time with them in a place that to me symbolizes such inequity.

Am I out of line, and is there anything I should say to stop the invitations? — Big Bro

DEAR BRO: If you want to stop the invitations, you need only say, “Sis, thank you for the invitations, but I don’t envision ever visiting you at the house.”

However, if your sister is really as vulnerable and foolish as you portray, then it would be kindest to keep the door open — figuratively, anyway.

Visiting would give you access to her and some firsthand knowledge of her situation.

Pay for university presidents on rise

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The pay for public university presidents in Kentucky has increased more in recent years than that of faculty.

The Lexington Herald-Leader cites a report from the Legislative Research Commission that shows salary increases for university presidents ranged between 5 percent and 34 percent from 2006 to 2010. The Southern Regional Education Board says that the average faculty pay in the state increased by 7.7 percent during the same time period.

A similar situation was seen with community college presidents. In Kentucky, their average pay raise was 12 percent; professors got about half of that amount.

Meanwhile, the schools are grappling with millions in state funding cuts that have meant higher tuition and the loss of some education programs.

John Hayek, vice president of the Council on Postsecondary Education, said the salary of public university presidents has become an issue as the amount of state funding decreases.

“There is the question of whether the compensation is excessive, given the roles and responsibilities and the public service element of the institutions,” Hayek said. “On the one side, there are competitive issues of attracting highly qualified individuals; on the other, we have to remember these are institutions supported through public dollars.

“There’s some recognition there has to be a balance.”

A study the American Association of University Professors in Washington, D.C., shows that Kentucky is about average when it comes to higher education pay. The organization found that the average president’s salary increased by 12.3 percent between 2007 and 2010 while faculty salaries went up by 5.6 percent. At community colleges, presidential raises averaged about 10.5 percent compared to 4.5 percent for faculty.

AAUP director of research and public policy John Curtis said the numbers show a focus on a more corporate style of leadership in higher education.

“The usual justification that’s given from a governing body is, ‘We need to pay these salaries to remain competitive,’” Curtis said. “The problem with that logic is that there doesn’t seem to be any connection to accomplishment; it’s kind of an upwards spiral. It reflects a shift in priorities that puts more focus on this corporate style of management.”

New Ky. National Guard facility to open in April

OWENSBORO, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky National Guard’s $14 million readiness facility in Owensboro is set to open in mid-April and will be the Guard’s most modern facility in the state.

Capt. Joseph Sloan, an officer in the construction management division of the Kentucky National Guard, said the design focuses on security, operational support and efficiency.

The Messenger-Inquirer reported the new facility will hold administrative offices, classrooms, locker rooms to store equipment, a 3,500-square-foot assembly/mess hall and kitchen. The center’s lobby features a metal eagle emblem that used to hang over the entrance of the old armory in Owensboro that this facility is replacing.

The facility will also have a maintenance area for vehicles and a physical fitness area. The center is also protected against earthquakes by more than 500 concrete piers.

Protection for children not secured with funds

The $19-million compromise budget passed by the Kentucky General Assembly on Friday cuts funding for many state agencies by 8.4 percent. Funding for universities will be cut $6.4 million. The two-year spending plan has no raises for state employees and no cost-of-living increase for retirees.

The cuts for state agencies are sobering, and there's no doubt many services will have to be reduced or scaled back. The cuts to universities could mean higher tuition for Kentucky families.

Despite the cuts, state spending will increase in two areas of particular interest to the Southern Pennyrile.

The budget includes additional funding for the Meals on Wheels program. There are waiting lists for seniors who have requested a delivered lunch on weekdays in Christian, Todd and Trigg counties.

The other budget increase provides an additional $21 million for the Cabinet for Health and Family Services to hire approximately 300 social workers.

The cabinet's failure to protect children of abuse and neglect in Kentucky homes has been revealed in painful detail following the Feb. 4 murder of 9-year-old Amy Dye, of Todd County. The Todd County Standard newspaper won an important open records battle for documents that help explain how social workers failed to properly protect the child. A judge ordered the release of the records after the cabinet lied about their existence.

In another open records court case brought by the Lexington Herald-Leader and The Courier Journal, the cabinet has withheld or delayed release of documents in cases where children died or nearly died from abuse or neglect.

The cabinet, through its attorneys, has maintained a stubborn hold on many of the records despite the resignation of the cabinet secretary and statewide outrage over Dye's case and others in which children died.

It is not unreasonable to assume that many of the cabinet's deficiencies in dealing with child protection are related to case overloads for social workers. But it remains unclear how much caseloads affect the cabinet and how much is the result of a broken agency.

Funding for more social workers is not a solution to all of the cabinet's problems. Kentuckians should not relax their pressure on the cabinet to open its records.

Legislation that attempted to address some of the problems of transparency was spoiled by the cabinet's attempts to withhold critical information in future reviews. The bill, following a move that the Kentucky Press Association described as "sleight of hand" to shift it quickly from one committee to another, eventually failed.

Now a state cabinet that has failed repeatedly to respect the need for transparency has an additional $21 million in tax money to manage for Kentuckians.

The cabinet has not proven it deserves our trust to properly manage the money and to use it fully in the protection of children.

OUR OPINION

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Double-dipping retirees keep new hires from gaining work

The Editor, New Era,
I take exception to the letter of Herbert G. Mayfield published March 23 under the headline, "Public employees deserve retirement from second career."

Corporations may be offered incentives to establish operations here. This also happens elsewhere. However, I know of no Economic Development Council that has such a record of choosing losers. It chooses corporations that cannot survive with the local labor market.

When I talk about the double-dippers, I am not talking about individuals like Mr. Mayfield, who I assume took the civil service exam and got on the roster to be selected for his second public service job and was selected. I am talking about individuals who have retired from one public job and are appointed to a second one without being selected from a roster of qualified individuals for a posted job opening. Double-dippers are usually given jobs, which have never been posted as open. Hence, no one else is given a chance to apply for the job. This, I believe, is wrong.

In my own field, education, there are always job openings created for 100 days of employment in a school year. These job openings are created for retirees so that their employment will not affect their retirement pay. This has been done for years, locally in the educational field. This needs to stop.

In recent years, employment of retired teachers in critical shortage areas has been authorized. These teachers draw both the complete salary plus retirement pay. Some of these retired teachers have been employed even when there is no local shortage in the certification. This needs to stop.

A general manager of a Hopkinsville agency was allowed to retire just before the retirement system changed, and the changed system would not be as generous to the retiree. He was hired back the next day as general manager; I assume drawing salary plus retirement. All of this was covered in a front-page article in the Kentucky New Era.

All responsible comments are welcome as usual.

Many levels of appalling

WASHINGTON — There are so many appalling aspects to the Trayvon Martin case that it's hard to find a permanent home for outrage.

Most appalling, obviously, is the fatal shooting of an unarmed 17-year-old who was targeted by a 28-year-old volunteer neighborhood watchman. George Zimmerman thought Martin seemed "suspicious," and followed him for a while before Martin allegedly attacked him.

What really happened is anyone's guess since Martin isn't here to tell his side of the story, and there were no witnesses to the shooting. There's audio of Zimmerman calling 911 to report his concerns about Martin. There's grainy video of Zimmerman arriving at the police station not looking, by some appraisals, sufficiently battered to corroborate his tale of being attacked.

Also appalling is the presumed racial motivation. Given that Martin was armed only with iced tea and a bag of Skittles — and given that his suspicious behavior seems to have hinged primarily on the fact that he was wearing a "hoodie" — it's easy to see why some have concluded that race was a factor, though not only blacks wear hoodies. How many police sketches have we seen of white suspects wearing hoodies? Plenty.

Would Zimmerman have found a fellow Hispanic suspicious under the same circumstances? A white male? We don't know, but we do know that Zimmerman and his wife mentored two African-American children, hardly the actions of hardened racists.

Add to the "appalling" roster the growing congregation of usual suspects crowing, profiling and politicizing the case. From movie stars to talk show hosts and then to a congressman who wore a hoodie to the House floor — the tragedy of Trayvon Martin has become a cause celebre. A month later, the hoodie has become a symbol of solidarity against institutional racism. We all wear hoodies now.

That we all want justice for Trayvon Martin should be a foregone assumption. But also assumed should be the understanding that we await all the facts before we convict. Without knowing much of anything, we seem to have reached a consensus that this is a case of racially motivated violence. When President Obama commented on the case, saying that if he had a son, he'd look like Trayvon, he set a narrative in motion from which there seems to be no retreat.

Another appalling feature of this horrific event is the apparent attempt by some to paint a less-than-favorable portrait of Martin. It is true that early photos released of him showed a younger, more apple-cheeked version. More recent images reveal a youngster becoming a man — not quite as cuddly, but certainly no less attractive than other teens as they morph from child to adult.

We've also learned that Martin used the Internet as many his age do. He used rough language and a handle that includes the N-word. He also apparently had been suspended from school for marijuana possession at the time of his death. It happens, but really, so what?

It isn't wrong to try to learn more about the involved parties in an attempt to imagine how they might have interacted. But I can't fathom what these details have to do with Martin's death. A teen who smokes pot and plays tough guy on the Internet isn't necessarily going to punch a stranger in the nose. Isn't this something like pointing out that a rape victim was flirty and wore short skirts?

What is likely is that both men scared each other for different reasons and one tragically overreacted. It is certainly plausible that Martin was terrified and acted accordingly. When he told his girlfriend by phone that someone was following him, she told him to run. Would that he had, but in his mind, Martin might have considered this a risky option.

Apropos of Martin's less angelic side, parents of boys know that young males say and do dumb things that don't mean anything. They act cocky out of fear or talk trash to deflect. They wear hoodies or backward baseball caps or low-hanging jeans because these innocuous gestures of grandiosity are often the only weapons available to the unarmed. We all have our ways of telegraphing, "Don't mess with me (please)."

That someone would interpret one such symbol or gesture as suspicious or threatening, prompting him ultimately to use lethal force, is the most appalling feature in a case in which outrage has too many homes.

WORLD BRIEFS

Myanmar holds polling likely to see dissident Aung San Suu Kyi elected

YANGON, Myanmar (AP) — Aung San Suu Kyi was poised to win her first elected office in an election Sunday in Myanmar drawing crowds of voters determined to send the country's most famous ex-political prisoner to parliament. A victory for Suu Kyi would mark a new era in her 24-year political career, which was spent mostly under house arrest, and for Myanmar as the government seeks legitimacy and a lifting of Western sanctions while emerging from a half-century of oppressive and hermetic military rule. Sunday's by-election was called to fill just 45 vacant seats in Myanmar's 664-seat national Parliament and will not change the balance of power in a new government that is nominally civilian but still heavily controlled by retired generals. Suu Kyi and other opposition candidates would have almost no say even if they win all the seats they are contesting.

Stricken cruise ship with 1,000 aboard creeps toward Malaysian port

SANDAKAN, Malaysia (AP) — A luxury cruise ship stranded at sea for 24 hours by a fire was limping toward a Malaysian port Sunday, as emergency services and embassy officials prepared to help the 1,000 people on board. The Azamara Quest was adrift in waters off the southern Philippines for a full day after flames engulfed one of its engine rooms Friday night, injuring five crew members. It restored propulsion the next night and is expected to reach the harbor of Sandakan city in Malaysia's eastern state of Sabah on Borneo island late Sunday. It was the latest in a series of accidents hitting luxury cruise liners since January, when the Costa Concordia capsized off the coast of Italy, killing 32 people.

Turkey hosts meeting to back Syrian opposition, build pressure on Assad

ISTANBUL (AP) — Dozens of countries on Sunday sought to set conditions for a new Syria, pushing for tighter sanctions and diplomatic pressure to further isolate President Bashar Assad, while urging the opposition to offer a democratic alternative to his regime. Yet the show of solidarity at the "Friends of the Syrian People" conference in Turkey's largest city, Istanbul, was marred by the absence of China, Russia and Iran — key supporters of Assad who disagree with Western and Arab allies over how to stop the bloodshed. A peace plan by U.N.-Arab League envoy Kofi Annan has so far failed to take hold amid fresh reports of deadly violence. "The Syrian regime should not be allowed at any cost to manipulate this plan to gain time," Turkish Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan said in an opening address. "This regime has never kept its promises."

Pope begins Holy Week with Palm Sunday Mass, news for Cuban church

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Benedict XVI has kicked off the Catholic Church's Holy Week celebrations with Palm Sunday Mass in St. Peter's Square and good news from Cuba. Cuba's communist government on Saturday agreed to Benedict's request to make Good Friday a holiday, a request made during his visit to the Caribbean island last week. The day, which is celebrated this Friday, marks the solemn commemoration of Christ's death. On Sunday, Benedict traveled into St. Peter's Square on the back of a white jeep at the start of Palm Sunday Mass, which marks Jesus' arrival in Jerusalem and inaugurates Holy Week.

2012 NCAA DIVISION I MEN’S BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

UK, KU take center stage

Kentucky guard Doron Lamb (20), forward Michael Kidd-Gilchrist (14) and guard Marquis Teague celebrate during the second half of their 69-61 NCAA tournament semifinal victory over Louisville Saturday night in New Orleans.

Davis, 'Cats pull away from Cards

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Bragging rights in the Bluegrass State are mighty nice. Kentucky has its sights set higher. Much higher. Anthony Davis and top-seeded Kentucky are right where they planned to be all along, playing for the national title after finally putting away pesky Louisville 69-61 in the Final Four on Saturday night. “I have a team that’s had teams come at them all year,” coach John Calipari said, “and they responded again today.” It will be Kentucky’s first appearance in the title game since winning a seventh NCAA crown back in 1998 and it gives Calipari another shot at the championship that has eluded him. The Wildcats (37-2) will face No. 2 seed Kansas, a 64-62 winner over Ohio State in the second semifinal. After the game, thousands of fans swarmed into the streets near the University of Kentucky campus, overturning cars and lighting couches ablaze. Riot police used pepper spray and 150 of Kentucky forward Anthony Davis reacts after the Wildcats defeated Louisville in their NCAA tournament semifinal game Saturday in New Orleans. Kentucky plays Kansas tonight for the national championship.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Well, this matchup is going to look familiar. John Calipari and his Kentucky juggernaut will face Kansas for the national championship on Monday night. That would be the same school that beat Memphis in overtime for the NCAA title in 2008, back when Calipari was coaching the Tigers. It also would be the same Kansas team that the Wildcats beat back in November. “We’re worried about us playing at our best,” Calipari said after Kentucky held off pesky Louisville 69-61 in the first semifinal Saturday. “We did not play at our best tonight. We played good, but that wasn’t our best. You know what? So maybe Monday is our best. We’re just worried about us.” Top-seeded Kentucky (37-2) is back in the title game for the first time since 1998, when it won its seventh NCAA championship.

Make room for NCAA title trophy No. 8

Part of me is ashamed. I wasn’t on board with this Kentucky basketball team until late in the season. And when I say late in the season, I mean third round of the NCAA tournament. My friend and assistant sports editor, Keith Jenkins, said after about the third game of the season this Kentucky team would win the national championship easily. He hasn’t wavered on his early prediction. My friend and former assistant sports editor George Robinson, a die hard Louisville fan, texted me near the end of Saturday night’s 69-61 Wildcat victory, that this is the best Kentucky team he has seen. If you know George, it takes a lot for him to say that. All year I’ve listened to people around me talk about Anthony Davis’ talent and the toughness of Michael Kidd-Gilchrist. I’ve listened to the TV talking heads all year declare UK better than several NBA teams. I don’t know if it was the history of Kentucky coach John Calipari in the NCAA tournament or if it was the way the last two seasons ended, but for some reason I wasn’t one of those confident Kentucky lovers. But I am now. Louisville coach Rick Pitino, who led UK to the 1996 national championship and a runner-up finish in 1997, said after his team’s loss Saturday that he would be pulling for the Wildcats tonight. He admitted he hated some Kentucky teams in the past, but he said he liked this team because of its toughness and the way it plays the game. I don’t agree with Coach Pitino often, but that’s exactly the reason I’m on the Big Blue Bandwagon. Sure, Davis is the guy who drives the UK bus. But against Indiana, while he was on the bench in foul trouble most of the first half, Kidd-Gilchrist scored 24 points and Doron Lamb had 21 as Kentucky ran to a 102-90 win. Against Baylor, Kidd-Gilchrist and Davis stole the offensive show, but Terrence Jones did all the little things that don’t show up in the stat box to get the win. Then Kidd-Gilchrist, the motor for the UK bus, went to the bench early against Louisville. While he was out, Davis and Jones carried the load until the final 10:00 when Kidd-Gilchrist scored all of his nine points. Early in the year, I thought the Wildcats’ weakness was Marquis Teague. But the freshman point guard has shown great maturity in the last month. He didn’t get the credit, but his first two driving baskets against Louisville

3 area soccer players traveling to England

Three southern Pen-nyrile area high school soccer players will spend the next two weeks in England playing for the Western Kentucky Futbol Club Storm.

University Heights Academy's Bryant Hamby, Hopkinsville's Austin Bucko and Fort Campbell's Josh Boren are on the team, which left Sunday for England.

The team is scheduled to return April 13.

Murray State grid team scrimmages

Murray State University's football team held its first major scrimmage of the spring on Saturday at Roy Stewart Stadium.

The Racers ran 107 plays with 79 of them coming on a full field with drives starting at the offense's 35-yard line.

Duane Brady scored on a 1-yard run and Spencer Phillips threw touchdown passes to John King, Walter Powell and Dontel Watkins. Nikkous Moore also had a 3-yard scoring run.

Phillips went 15 of 19 for 184 yards and three scores and Parks Frazier finished 16 of 23 for 168 yards.

Julian Whitehead had the only interception of the day.

The Racers return to the field at 3:30 p.m. Thursday and the annual Blue-Gold game is set for 6 p.m. April 14.

QB's shine for UK at mini scrimmage

The University of Kentucky football team held a mini scrimmage Saturday with Wildcats' coach Joker Phillips saying he was pleased by his team's performance.

Sophomore-to-be quarterback Maxwell Smith threw a pair of touchdown passes and second-team signal-caller Jacob Russell also had a pair of scoring tosses.

La'Rod King caught a 20-yard scoring pass and Rashad Cunningham hauled in a 70-yard scoring toss.

Demarco Robinson and Bookie Cobbins also had scoring receptions.

Kentucky is scheduled to have its first full scrimmage Saturday.

Newman wins wild finish at Martinsville

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Ryan Newman needed help and was running out of time. Finally, Clint Bowyer provided an opening with two laps to go at Martinsville Speedway.

Bowyer's aggressive move took out race leaders Jeff Gordon and Jimmie Johnson entering the first turn, allowing Newman to slide into the lead, and he held off A.J. Allmendinger and Dale Earnhardt Jr. on another restart for his first win in 23 races.

"We were not a dominate race car," Newman said. "Clint kind of cleared out Turn One for us and we were fortunate enough to be in the right place at the right time."

The reverse was true for Gordon, who led 328 laps, and Johnson, who led 112. The Hendrick Motorsports teammates seemed poised to battle it out to see which one would give owner Rick Hendrick his 200th Sprint Cup victory, and neither had a chance in the end.

"Jeff and I had been the class of the field so I really thought it was going to be a race between the two of us, and it certainly didn't turn out that way," Johnson said.

single and double and Natalie Perry had a double to lead Todd, which plays Tuesday at Jo Byrns.

Heritage Christian Academy sweeps AIE in home doubleheader

The Heritage Christian Academy baseball team made easy work of visiting AIE Saturday afternoon.

The Warriors swept the club in a doubleheader, 10-0 and 16-0, in convincing fashion to improve to 2-1 on the season.

Nathan Workman led HCA with a triple and a double and Alex Walker added a double and a single in the 10-0 win that took only four innings.

On the mound, Walker struck out six and walked none to earn the pitching victory.

The Warriors took advantage of seven errors by AIE.

In the second game, John Lober blasted a double and eighth other Warriors recorded singles in the lopsided final.

Richie Ary struck out one and walked another in three innings of work en route to the win.

AIE committed six errors in the loss.

US, Japan draw 1-1

SENDAI, Japan (AP) — Alex Morgan scored in the 72nd minute to give the United States a 1-1 draw with Japan, the team that beat them in the final of the Women's world cup last year.

Yukari Kinga beat goalkeeper Hope Solo from close in to give Japan a 1-0 lead in the 32nd.

The United States created opportunities on the right wing, but Japan's superior speed was dangerous on the counterattack.

Sun Young Yoo wins in playoff

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Sun Young Yoo won the Kraft Nabisco Championship with an 18-foot birdie putt on the first playoff hole Sunday, earning her first major title after I.K. Kim missed a 1-foot putt on the final hole of regulation.

Yoo won the LPGA Tour's first major of the season with steady play down the stretch, but she got to make the traditional leap into Poppie's Pond only after Kim's mind-boggling miss on the same green minutes earlier.

Yoo, who earned her second career LPGA Tour victory, and Kim finished at 9 under, but Kim could have all but wrapped up her first major with the tap-in par putt. Kim might have struck the ball oddly, and it toured the lip of the cup before coming out on the same side it entered.

Kim's unbelievable miss on the Dinah Shore course will go down in tournament lore after a thoroughly wacky final round in which five players held the lead.

Kim had been the most consistent contender amid those wild momentum swings, going bogey-free through 17 holes — until she made a mistake reminiscent of Scott Hoch's missed 2-foot putt that would have won the 1989 Masters, and Doug Sanders' miss on a 3-footer to win the 1970 British Open.

Kim and Yoo, both from South Korea, shot 69 in the final round.

Top-ranked Yani Tseng finished third at 8 under with a disappointing final-round 73. Even after blowing a Sunday lead at the Kraft Nabisco for the second straight year, the Taiwanese star had a chance to join the playoff on the 18th, but pushed a long birdie putt wide by an inch.

Defending champion Stacy Lewis closed strong with a 66 to finish in a four-way tie for fourth place with Amy Yang (69) and late leaders Karin Sjodin — who shot a 74 after entering the final round even with Tseng — and Hee Kyung Seo, who had a three-stroke lead on the back nine before bogeying her final four holes for a 71.

■Houston Open: In Humble, Texas, Hunter Mahan won the Houston Open to become the first two-time winner this year on the PGA Tour, finishing with a 1-under 71 to beat Carl Pettersson by a stroke.

Pennyroyal Scuba Center Blue Springs Resort

Wrap up your spring break week with a trip underwater. The Pennyroyal

Kentucky is home to 50 state parks with an array of animals. This spring break enjoy the outdoors by visiting Land Between the Lakes or the Pennyrile Forest State Resort Park.

Scuba Center Blue Springs Resort opens the season on April 14. Admission tickets go on sale on April 9.

The resort offers something for all levels of diving experience with water ranging from 5 to 120 feet in depth. Divers must be certified to swim, but there are classes available to gain certification. A new cabin opens this season allowing divers the chance to stay on site after their excursions, turning a day trip into a vacation.

General admission is $25 this season, but a few tickets are available online for $15.

Where to stay:

Home on the range

Hidden Lake Lodge

Sitting on 180 acres, Hidden Lake Lodge offers all the comforts of home while placed in a rustic setting. The lodge has four bedrooms and five bathrooms, a kitchen, living room, loft and three sitting areas. When weather is warm, you can linger outdoors and watch the stars, but should it be cooler than you are expecting, you can warm up next to a wood-burning stone fireplace.

A large charcoal grill and wrap-around porch guarantee fun nights outdoors while two entertainment centers, each with a large-screen TV and high speed Internet, keep everyone happy inside. The lodge is also handicap-accessible. For more information, visit www.kentucky-hiddenlakelodge.com or call 270-348-3201.

River home

Waterway Adventures

Water-lovers may find this home away from home suits them best. Available through Waterway Adventures, spend a few days floating on a houseboat. Prices vary depending on boat, occupancy and the duration of stay.

With many events taking place near the water's edge, this mobile home may provide you a mode to reach those activities, or you can stay on the water, enjoying your own private diving board. For information on pricing or to book your trip call 800-844-8862 or 800-331-1780 or visit www.waterwayadventures.com.

Enjoy the water life this spring break by staying on a houseboat.

Sleeping under the stars

Land Between the Lakes/Pennyrile Forest State Resort Park

Both locations provide opportunities for enjoying the outdoors to its fullest. After spending the day climbing over hills or splashing in the lake, visitors have multiple options for getting some much-needed rest.

Traditionalists can find the perfect campsites to settle down for the night, setting up a tent and unrolling their sleeping bags (keep your food in a safe place out of reach of critters — and hungry children).

For a little more comfort reserve cabins that vary in size, occupancy and amenities. RV hookups are also available.

Prices can begin at as little as $6 and go as high as the price of the RV you'd like to bring with you. As with all locations, it is best to call ahead to reserve your space. For more information on camping at LBL, call 800-525-7077 and for the Pennyrile Forest State Resort Park call 270-797-3421 or 800-325-1711.

For the sophisticats

Cadiz St. Bed and Breakfast

In the movie 1993 "Tombstone," actress Dana Delany, playing Josephine Marcus, says her idea of heaven is room service. Those who agree would do well to enjoy a stay at Cadiz St. Bed and Breakfast in Princeton.

The B&B is a restored 1895 Victorian home with hardwood floors, crown molding adorning the 10-foot walls and baths featuring claw-foot tubs.

Owners Charles and Helen Pratt run the nonsmoking house. Charles, who previously owned a small restaurant on Lake Barkley, can often be found in the kitchen cooking fresh scones or blueberry muffins. Guests can enjoy their breakfast in the dining room or have it delivered to your room.

Free computer lessons offered at John L. Street Library

BY JO ANN KNOTT
FOR THE NEW ERA

CADIZ, Ky.—Learning the computer is easier this year because of free classes at the John L. Street Library. The lessons were made possible by a $35,000 to $40,000 federal grant.

"I thought it would be a wonderful thing to teach people how to use the computer," explained Pam Metz, the library's director of 15 years. "So many people do their banking and contact family and friends now on the computer."

Metz wrote the request for a grant in August of 2009. The request was approved a year later. The library started receiving the grant money in June of 2011. The first computer class was offered in September.

Prior to the first class, Metz purchased six laptops, six personal computers, two printers, one new server, one new router, one computer for visually impaired users (with a larger screen and larger keyboard) and a cabinet for the equipment.

"The grant requires that I teach 36 computer classes twice a month to be completed within three years," Metz continues, "I will complete the grant requirements in 2013."

The first class was completed in December. New students can still join the current class by calling the library. Private lessons are also available.

One class member, Chester F. Wilson, Rockcastle, was looking forward to the e-mail class offered March 19, 2012. He and his wife, Jane, want to keep in touch with their three daughters and six grandchildren.

"My wife and I moved to Rockcastle from Henry County seven years ago and got a computer last Christmas, but we didn't know how to use it," Wilson admits.

Classes focus on basic computer and Internet skills as well as e-mail and Facebook. Some private lessons help students with day-to-day tasks such as corresponding with family members or filling out forms for unemployment benefits.

"A lot of people need help with unemployment," said Metz. "They have to do it online now for the benefit checks. We have to do that one on one."

Metz admits she wrote the grant because the library needed more computers and had no funds.

"A lot of people come in to use the computers here," she said. "A lot of school kids. I feel a great sense of satisfaction from the more than 12 classes I've taught, when I see some of my students coming in to use the computers after completing their classes."

Metz started at the John L. Street library 21 years ago as a children's librarian.

JO ANN KNOTT | FOR THE NEW ERA

"I've lived in Trigg County most of my life," she adds. "I am a Trigg County Thomas, so I have a lot of family. I go to a small county church. I use the computer most of the time for my work."

MONDAY, APRIL 2, 2012 HAPPY BIRTHDAY! If you ever were to be described as dramatic, it would be this year. You have an energy, spirit and unusual sensitivity to people and situations. Note a tendency to be too proud for your own good. Pride can cause separation between you and a loved one. Don't jeopardize this relationship because of a newfound confidence. If you are single, you might get into dating much more than in past years. Anytime from summer on could bring a special person down your path. LEO always wants his or her way.

A baby born today has a Sun in Aries and a Moon in Leo.

MONDAY'S HOROSCOPE

JACQUELINE BIGAR

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★★ You can't help but respond to others, and they to you. The connection is evident, whether at work or on the golf course. It also gives all parties involved greater confidence. Indulge in the present vibes. Tonight: Smile and the world smiles with you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ You wake up feeling perky and full of energy. Nearly wherever you are, the good vibes will possess you. The problem is that, as jubilant as you are, you might not care about your routine. Make sure that is OK. When the Bull overindulges, it is not by a little bit. Tonight: Invite a friend over.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ You generally say the correct words and do the correct actions. As you cruise into your day, you'll enjoy your conversations even more than usual. Though sometimes it is a chore, you'll get to a meeting today with ease and a smile. Your good nature permeates everyone's day. Tonight: Don't even consider being alone.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★★ Treat yourself well — even better than usual. If you need to take some time off for a personal matter, do so. Consider signing up for a class to develop a favorite pastime or sport. Others might opt for a gym membership to trim up for the summer. Tonight: Indulge yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★★ You radiate energy. The way you walk, your smile — it all reflects your unusual vitality. Others cannot help but respond. Your mind could drift to a trip, someone at a distance or an important discussion with an erudite individual. Tonight: Practice the word "no." Too many people seek you out.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ Your mind drifts when it is not working overtime. You wonder about all the effort you are putting into a project and/or a relationship. Do not isolate yourself unnecessarily. A partner or close friend tries to lure you out of this semi-reclusive mode. Will you go for the bait? Only you can decide. Tonight: Your energy level calls the shots.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ Your ability to zero in on someone's needs might amaze that person, but it also could make him or her uncomfortable. Do not let others become aware of your sensitivity. A meeting is very important. Listen well, as you could miss an important point. Tonight: Among the crowds.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ You might want to approach a situation differently. Others are very aware of what you are doing and why. Be aware that you have little privacy at the present time, and make your decisions accordingly. Maintain your boundaries. Tonight: To the wee hours.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ Your mind will take off if your body cannot follow. Some of you might be professional armchair travelers. Others could have their minds drift to distant lands or special people during discussions. Tonight: Get physical.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★★ Deal directly with others. Everyone appreciates being the focus of one person's attention. Note the immediate reaction of one-on-one relating. Do not forget a special person in your life. Consider an investment involving your home or property. Tonight: Dinner for two.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★★ Sometimes it's best to let someone else run with the ball, especially if this person thinks he or she has a better idea than you. Remember, nothing can replace experience. Check in on an overindulgent family member. Tonight: Let a friend make the final call.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ You will do more than your share in the next few days. You know how to say "enough is enough," especially if you feel you are picking up someone's slack. Many people want to share their feelings with you. Tonight: Make it early.
